

Build a Secure Cyberspace 2017
“Smart Home, Safe Living”
1-Page Comic Drawing Contest

The Office of the Government Chief Information Officer, the Hong Kong Police Force and the Hong Kong Computer Emergency Response Team Coordination Centre have jointly organised the annual “Build a Secure Cyberspace” promotional campaign on information security since 2005. To raise public awareness of information security, the Organisers will stage a series of promotional activities, including conducting thematic seminars and schools visits, distributing leaflets and posters, producing radio broadcast programmes and organising various types of contests, etc. More information about the campaign can be found at this URL:

www.cybersecurity.hk/en/build-a-secure-cyberspace.php

Objective

The objective of the “Smart Home, Safe Living” 1-Page Comic Drawing Contest is to raise public awareness of information security and encourage the adoption of security best practices, with a view to enhancing public concern about the security of Internet devices. With 1-page comic drawings, participants can demonstrate through stories the cyber security risks and threats posed to Internet devices (e.g. IP cameras, wireless routers, etc.) and the respective preventive measures to protect the operation of the devices and the privacy of personal data against hackers. Examples of preventive measures include changing the default accounts and passwords of Internet devices, installing the latest software and firmware updates, and disabling unnecessary wireless communication features and services in Internet devices, etc.
